Delivery/Assessment

Students receive access to introductory presentations at the commencement of each unit. These presentations are made available as a series of recorded webinars. Students then complete self-paced learning and assessment using learning materials supplied by Career Training Institute. Details of the additional textbooks which are purchased separately by the student, are provided. Students are assigned a trainer/assessor whose role it is to support students through their training.

For each unit of competency that students undertake, they will need to complete assessment items which collectively form evidence that they are competent (C) in that unit. If students do not complete each item of assessment then they will remain as not yet competent (NYC). Generally students will receive two assignments per unit. Each of these items is a piece of evidence and all need to be completed to a satisfactory standard before competency can be awarded. Students will need access to a computer to complete training and assessment.

Assignments can be in the form of:

- workbook/short answer questions
- reports
- computer exercises
- presentations
- practical activities
- simulated workplace documents
- case studies
- trainer interviews/observation

Workplace diary pages are published on the LMS as an optional tool. These pages encourage the student to undertake valuable self-reflection and should be used as a communication tool between students and their employer. It can help to inform the employer of the unit(s) being studied at a particular time and the types of things that a student could be observing or doing at their workplace as on-the-job training.

Timeline for completion

There is a reasonable expectation that each unit is completed within 6 weeks and that the entire qualification is completed in no more than 15 months.

The module enrolment period takes into account that the student might have additional personal and work commitments in this period. If a module is incomplete within six months of commencement of the module, the student will need to re-enrol in any incomplete units and will be re-invoiced accordingly. Students will have a maximum of 24 months from the date of commencement to complete this qualification.

Credit Transfer/Recognition of prior learning (RPL)

Recognition will be given for relevant AQF qualifications and statements of attainment issued by a VET provider for previous training. When completing the online course application, students should submit a copy of documentation detailing previous units studied. A Credit Transfer/RPL application will then be filled out by a member of the RTO on the student's behalf.

Learning Support

Glenvale Education will take appropriate measures to ensure that students receive training, assessment and support that meet their individual needs. Learning and assessment strategies are designed to meet student needs, however we recognise that individuals may have additional needs. Glenvale Education will attempt to identify barriers which people with a disability encounter when accessing programs and services and develop strategies to minimise the impact of these barriers.

Complaints and appeals

The Career Training Institute acknowledges the importance of establishing a transparent and consistent process for managing and responding to complaints and appeals. All complaints and appeals will be managed using the procedure for complaints and appeals in conjunction with other relevant policies and procedures.

It is recognised that complaints and appeals may be minor or major in nature. The Complaints and Appeals policy applies to complaints and appeals of staff members and clients/students. In certain circumstances this procedure may be used to deal with an external stakeholder somehow involved in the training program.

Strict confidentiality will be maintained in all matters relating to a complaint or appeal. Information will be provided to relevant and appropriate parties only if necessary. Persons with a grievance will not be named as far as possible.

The complaint/appeal should be raised in writing, in person or telephone. For major complaints/appeals the person must raise it in writing and submit it to the RTO Manager. A complaints and appeals form is available from the RTO office.

Fees and charges

Career Training Institute will collect fees for services provided on terms understood by the RTO and the client in accordance with legislation and regulatory requirements.

Course enrolment and student induction are factored into the cost of the first module.

Payment is to be made within 14 days of invoice issue date.
